Biographical Sketch

It is fitting that one who devoted so much time and pains to ascertaining and recording important facts in the lives of others should have the leading incidents in his own life set down at the beginning of this his last completed book.

William Innes Addison was born in the parish of Brechin in Forfarshire on 22nd March, 1857. Although he was the eldest son of the family, he did not take to his father's occupation of farming, for, after his school-days were over, led by some dim feeling or presentiment of what was needed for his future work, he became, at the age of fourteen, an articled apprentice to Messrs. Shiress & Whitson, solicitors in Brechin, with whom he spent four years engaged in the usual routine of elementary work in a law office. The next four years saw him in Edinburgh, gaining fruitful experience in business and in the study of Law at the University. In July, 1875, he joined the staff in the office of Mr. A. Kirk Mackie, S.S.C., who was for many years Solicitor and Secretary to the Edinburgh Merchant Company, with its Schools and Colleges, and Legal Adviser with regard to the Company's Estates. During the first eighteen months he was employed in general work, including conveyancing, accounts and correspondence, and in preparing Abstracts of the Feu Rights contained in many volumes of Chartularies, extending over 150 years, and referring to feuing estates in at least five different counties in Scotland. He was afterwards appointed chief cashier, and in this capacity had from £150,000 to £200,000 per annum passing through his hands. This included the collection of the income of the Merchant Company and several of its endowed Schools and Colleges, and the payment of Salaries to Teachers, allowances to Foundationers, and annuities to Widows, besides large capital payments for loans, purchases of property, and banking transactions. In the stress of these onerous duties he did not allow his attention to be absorbed by the details of business, but showed a desire to obtain a grasp of the principles of his profession. With this view, hard pressed though he was in his daily work, he found time for study, and attended the classes of Scots Law and Conveyancing, gaining Honours in the latter.

In 1879 he removed to Glasgow and entered the chambers of Messrs. James Ritchie, Maclean & Co. With this firm and their successors he remained eight years, with entire charge of the Cash and Book-keeping departments, besides taking a substantial share in strictly law business and in the administration of numerous and wealthy Trusts. In this period some matters of special interest fall to be noted, viz. (1) his attendance at Arts Classes (Humanity, English Literature, and Moral Philosophy) between 1880 and 1884; (2) his admission as a Notary Public in 1881; and (3) his marriage in 1885.

In 1887 came the opportunity for which his whole previous life had been a preparation, and his official connection with the University of Glasgow began. A vacancy having occurred on the Matriculation side of the Clerk of Senate's Office, Mr. Addison applied and was appointed. No happier appointment could have been made. By successive Principals and Professors, by generation after generation of students and graduates, and most of all by the Clerk of Senate, it was unreservedly recognised that he was the man for the place, while he, on the other hand, was not slow to discover that the place was the place for him. In the University and its affairs, present and past, he found not only work he could do with a will, but also recreation he could heartily enjoy.

In the Matriculation Office were recorded the particulars required by the University regulations regarding every student from his entrance to his exit, what classes he attended, what Bursary and Degree examinations he passed, and what Degree he obtained. During the first few years of Mr. Addison's time the affairs of the University were administered in accordance with the Ordinances of the Royal Commission appointed under the Universities (Scotland) Act of 1858; thereafter the Ordinances of the Commission appointed under the Act of 1889 came into operation. The period of transition, in which there were two sets of students—one set under the old regulations, another set under the new—rendered the duties of the Office unusually heavy, and demanded the exercise of the utmost vigilance. The later Commission adopted the new policy of allowing students to follow optional lines of study within certain prescribed limits, and consequently the new Ordinances for the Preliminary Examinations and for Graduation in Arts, Science, Medicine, Law, and Theology, laid down regulations by no means easily understood by the average student; but the bent of Mr. Addison's mind and his legal training soon enabled him to master the details in such a manner as to make him the trusted adviser of many a perplexed youth, and he always showed admirable patience and courteous tact in dealing with anxious inquirers. It was his duty to ascertain that those who offered themselves as candidates for bursaries and scholarships were duly qualified, and the conditions embodied in the various Deeds of Foundation are so diverse as to make the fulfilment of this duty no easy task. The avenues to graduation in Arts, Science, and Law were so numerous, and yet so hedged round by limitations and restrictions, that it required great care in scrutinising the claims of every candidate to make sure that the requirements of the Ordinances had been fulfilled before he was admitted to his Degree. It was also his duty to receive and pay over to the University Factors the fees for Matriculation and for Preliminary and Degree examinations, and also in later years the fees payable by graduates and others on being admitted as members of the University Council.

In October, 1905, the University Court appointed him Registrar of the General Council, a position which he highly prized, chiefly because it kept him in touch with the graduates whose careers he had watched with interest from their earliest student days. When the Professor, who had been Clerk of Senate since 1876, demitted office in 1911, the department, which had grown immensely in his time, was re-arranged, and Mr. Addison received well-earned promotion. He was placed at the head of the general clerical staff and styled Registrar of the University.

In the discharge of these multifarious duties day by day he led a busy life, and yet he found ample scope for what he called recreation. The paragraph under his name in Who's Who contains the following characteristically humorous notice: "Recreation: editing, indexing, and annotating University Records, particularly with reference to students and graduates." His indulgence in this favourite pastime resulted in the production of a series of volumes, each involving laborious research in the University books and in other widely diverse fields. The first was entitled "A Roll of the Graduates of the University of Glasgow, from 31st December, 1727, to 31st December, 1897, with short biographical notes." It was a work of 700 pages, and gathered together in a convenient form all that could be gleaned regarding the graduates of that period, more than fifteen thousand in number. It occupied his evening hours for nearly ten years, and was published in the beginning of 1898. After an interval of three years appeared "The Snell Exhibitions, 1679-1900." This volume of 230 pages shows the author at his best as an historical investigator and writer. In the end of 1902 he issued a compilation of the Prize-lists, 1778-1833, reproduced verbatim et literatim from the advertising columns of old Glasgow newspapers, with all the original vagaries of spelling, punctuation, etc., untouched. He was himself painfully aware of the unsatisfactory state of the text, but as no record of the granting of these honours survives in the University, his sole object in making the compilation was to fill up the gap, and though not a few mistakes are obvious enough, he refrained from correcting even these, so as to leave the reader in the position of one examining the newspaper files for himself. Finally, after the lapse of another decade comes his last and perhaps his greatest work. He lived to complete the manuscript and to see the greater part through the press. The remainder of the task was entrusted to the capable hands of his daughter, Miss Addison, assisted by his senior clerk, Mr. John C. Ballantyne, to whose efficiency he not seldom bore emphatic witness.

In addition to these publications, he has left behind him a mass of manuscript material, prepared by him or under his direction, and not intended for the press, but for facilitating the work of the office in answering inquiries which come from all parts of the world, such as a single alphabetical index of the Prizes awarded between sessions 1833-4 and 1862-3, another comprehensive index for those awarded in the next thirty-four years, and an index for each succeeding period of five years. The class-catalogues from 1794 to 1910 have been collected in eleven volumes, and an index made for each of the first four down to 1871. From the time of his appointment in 1887 he kept elaborate statistics not required by any University regulation, but which may prove useful to some future Royal Commission, shewing, year by year, the distribution of the students in respect of (a) age, (b) place of birth, and (c) occupation of father.

Materials for the continuation of his "Roll of Graduates" were being constantly collected by him, and surely it is permissible to cherish the hope that Alma Mater will see to the carrying on of the work, so that when the year 1928 comes round, and the circle of the two centuries is complete, she may be able to issue a new and enlarged edition, and thus provide a worthy and enduring memorial of a zealous official who for a quarter of a century spent day and night in her service till his death on 15th October, 1912. He was faithful and loyal from the first; he was loyal and faithful to the last.

William Stewart.

Preface

It is neeessary to premise that these Matriculation Albums do not contain a record of all who actually attended the University during the period covered.

Matriculation was compulsory on (a) "gown" students in the Faculty of Arts who intended to proeeed to graduation, and (b) all Students who desired a vote in the Rectorial Election, though there is evidence that the requirement was not rigidly enforced as regards either section. It was optional in the case of all other students, and, as the "gown" classes embraced only Latin, Greek, Logic, Ethics, and Physies, it will be seen that a large field—Mathematics, Medicine, Law, and Theology—was left untraversed. For a long time, entries irregularly appeared of students "in quacunque facultate," and of Professors and other Officers who had not been alumni of Glasgow, but all these were comparatively few in number, and no such entries occur after 1828.

Meagre though they thus were, these Albums eonstituted the only record of students up to 1777-78, when the printed collection of Prize Lists begins, and the latter necessarily included only a small section of names. From 1794-95 onwards, there is a regular series of printed Class Lists, but the fatal limitation to "gown" classes was observed down to and including 1853-54. From 1818-19 to 1842-43, there are manuscript class records, holograph of the students and therefore of eonsiderable value, though obviously incomplete,—not to mention a register kept by Dr. Jeffray of those who sat under him during the whole 58 years of his Professorship, 1790 to 1848. It has often proved serviceable in cases of research, but it must be used with eaution. A volume with the title of "Attested Students," 1766 to 1843, used in connection with the Rectorial Elections, is subject to the same remark. It was not till 1843-44 that every student, no matter of what year or Faculty, was required annually to inscribe his name and other particulars in what was the preeursor of the modern Matriculation Album, which begins in 1859-60. In other words, it was impossible, earlier than 1843, to make up a eomplete list of alumni, or to say, from an inspeetion of the reeords, that any one person was not a student of Glasgow.

The Albums reproduced in the present publication are four in number :—

I. A book (marked 45) of 94 vellum leaves, measuring 12¼ in. by 11½ in., containing at the one end the matriculations from February, 1697, to April, 1756, and at the other end the laureations or graduations from 1707 to 1763. The matriculations up to 1727 are printed in the Munimenta Alme Universitatis Glasguensis.

II. A book (marked 64) of 200 parchment leaves, measuring 14½ in. by 9¾ in., containing the matriculations from November, 1756, to the end of 1809.

III. A book (marked A.) of 231 paper leaves, measuring 16¾ in. by 11 in., containing the matriculations from 1810 to 1854.

IV. A book (marked B.) of 237 paper leaves, only 12 of which have been used, measuring 17⅝ in. by 11 in., containing the matriculations from 1855 to 1858.

These books, from the point where the Munimenta leaves off to the point where the modern Albums begin, have been transcribed verbatim et literatim, including errors in spelling, punctuation, and Latin. Such mistakes, though fairly numerous, are not so dubious as to mislead.

Unlike their English sisters, the Scottish Universities did not then demand any matriculation examination. At Glasgow, the intending student simply inscribed his name in the Album (which thus contains actual signatures); the Professor of the particular class (or, in rare instances, a substitute) inserted the details as to parentage, &c.; and a Civis Universitatis Glasguensis was straightway created. The order of study was —first year, Latin; second year, Greek; third year, Logic; fourth year, Ethics; fifth year, Physics. Matriculation did not necessarily take place in the first session. If it did, the name was inserted under Latin; if in the second year, under Greek; and so on. A student who had taken any part of his course elsewhere would matriculate at the same point as if he had been at Glasgow from the start. Though there are a few instances of names appearing twice in the Album, this was not intended, but occurred per incuriam.

Many years have been spent in the collection of materials for the annotations, and, although it was obviously impossible to trace the after-careers of all, or nearly all, the alumni, a gratifying measure of success has attended this important investigation. It is hoped that the details thus ascertained may prove useful to some and interesting to others. The linking of one student with another (though, owing to inherent difficulties, far from exhaustive) throws a certain amount of light on old Glasgow genealogy, as well as on the ramifications of Scottish families in general. While the plan of reference by numbers has several drawbacks, it was clearly the only practicable method of accomplishing the object in view, without swelling the book to quite unmanageable dimensions. The index of "Notabilia" may possibly assist those who are conducting a search on special lines.

For the purpose of the annotations, numerous authorities have been laid under contribution, such as family and local histories, individual biographies, Calendars, Post Office Directories, and the like. Some of these were utilized in occasional cases only, but the following, among others, have been thoroughly examined.

Moderators of the Synod of the United Presbyterian Church.
Rectors of the University, Deans of Faculties, and Members of Court.

For most of these, the writer is indebted to his Senior Clerk, Mr. John C. Ballantyne (who also rendered valuable aid in other directions), and to a member of his own household.

The rest of the biographical particulars embodied in the annotations was secured by means of written communication with over 1500 different individuals, and the readiness and courtesy with which the great majority of them replied call for the most grateful thanks. Where so many obliging correspondents are concerned, it would be invidious to select any of them for special mention, though several assisted in much more than one case. Out of the 1500, only 60 failed to respond at all.

Notabilia

This collection is by no means exhaustive, but merely a selection to indicate the nature of some of the material contained in the text and the annotations. It will also be found that, though, under certain headings, only one reference is given, there are really many more items in the same connection, a single reference leading to others. Individual names are but sparingly introduced. For these the Index of Names must be consulted.
